

SCOTCH WHISKY

Robert Burns, the notable Scottish poet and lyricist, once said,
“Freedom an’ whisky gang thegither! Take aff your dram!”
Honestly, is there anything more beautiful than that?

All scotch whisky must be produced in Scotland and aged at least 3 years. This includes every step of whisky production through bottling.
There are several varieties of this spirit:

Malt Whisky

Made from a mashbill of 100% malted barley and distilled in a copper pot still. “Single Malt” whiskies are malt whiskies that come from a single distillery.

Grain Whisky

Made from a mashbill of malted barley and other cereal grains, malted or unmalted, and distilled in a column still. “Single Grain” whiskies are grain whiskies from a single distillery.

Blended Whisky

Blends of malt and/or grain whiskies, sometimes with neutral grain spirits added.

There are 5 whisky-producing regions in Scotland:
Campbeltown, Islay, The Highlands (which include the coastal islands), The Lowlands, and Speyside.
